NEWS OF A DAY.

Apache Indians are on the War-Path Again.

A. U. S. TREASURY THIEF

Is Placed Under Arrest—The Fighting At Tegucigalpa Continues Hot and Heavy—Emperor William Wants to Get Acquainted With Uncle Sam.

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 2.—Last night, news came in from Mammoth, sixty miles northeast of here, that the Indians are on the war-path. On Wednesday afternoon a man named Clark, a prospector, while at work in Bunker Hill district, was attacked by four Indians.

Clark is an old Indian scout and knows the country and the Indians. He easily evaded his assailants. Clark at once started for Mammoth, twelve miles away, for reinforcements. Coming in, he found the camp of William Emerson, another prospector, looted clean of valuables and food. Emerson was not found and Clark believes he is killed.

Clark aroused the camp at Mammoth and was soon at the head of a party of men, bent on capturing the Indians.

Yesterday morning a second party followed them.

About twenty men are now on the trail of the Indians and their capture is expected.

Clark is of the opinion that the party is either Kid and his gang, or a general outbreak of Apaches from the reservation. Neither event, would surprise him, he says. The scene of the supposed killing of Emerson is where Kid's party killed John Dineen six years ago. On receipt of the news in Tucson, word was telegraphed by Marshal Meade to Fort Grant with a request that troops be sent there. The request will doubtless be complied with.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—The treasury officials have discovered that James Anderson, Indiana, trusted messenger, has been pilfering silver dollars from the bags in the vaults. The bags were packed in boxes and piled up. Through a hole in one of the boxes Anderson cut a hole and withdrew the money. So far it has been discovered that nearly a thousand dollars have been taken in that way, and the investigation is not complete.

Anderson is only nineteen years old and was recently appointed to West Point military academy. He is now under arrest.

THE SIEGE CONTINUES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The Herald's special from Managua says the siege of Tegucigalpa continues. The fighting has been continuous since January 31. Pichacho Hill is the key to the situation, and the allied forces are endeavoring to capture it. A report has been received that Alfonso Villola took 800 men from the department Gracioso to reinforce Vasquez. A heavy artillery duel is now in progress. Bonilla is advancing from Conestoga from the north and Ortiz from South Mosquito.

WILL BE WELCOMED.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The morning papers state that at the last court ball the emperor conversed unreservedly with a high official upon the subject of England and the United States. He said he was extremely anxious to become better acquainted with the United States and was very desirous to make a visit to America and get impressions by a personal observation.

THE PROVO gunners have succeeded in arranging a rabbit-hunt with the gunners of Nephi to take place next Tuesday at Nephi, or between Nephi and Juab. The rabbits killed will be brought to Provo for distribution to the poor. Rabbits will be given as to the distribution later on. Wednesday the occasional sportsmen will shoot the professionals on the lake, team for team. Mr. Barney furnishes the wagon for the occasionals. A good time and good sport is sure to be had.

MUCH interest has been manifested all day among the people of Provo and those from other places interested in her welfare who are here, in the meeting to be held in the courthouse this evening, beginning at 4 o'clock. Some week or so ago a meeting of interested parties was held and appointed Hon. Wm. H. King, S. R. Thurman and Judge J. J. Jones a committee to investigate the probability of favorable action by the legislature should steps be taken by this city to get the capital. This committee has performed the work assigned to it and are now ready to report. The impression is that their report will be favorable. Further particulars will be given in next issue of this paper.

The Law of the Jungle.

The law of the jungle, which never orders anything without a reason, forbids every beast to eat man except when he is killing to show his children how to kill, and then he must hunt outside the hunting grounds of his pack or tribe. The real reason for this is that man killing means, sooner or later, the arrival of white men on elephants, with guns and hundreds of brown men with guns and rockets and torches. Then everybody in the jungle suffers. The reason the beasts give among themselves is that man is the weakest and most defenseless of all living things, and it is unprofitable to touch him. They say, too—and it is true—that man enters become mangy and lose their teeth.—Rudyard Kipling in St. Nicholas.

THEY DEFLY IMITATION.

Invention Can Supply No Substitutes For Whalebone or Teazel.

With all our boasted labor saving machinery and modern inventions there are numerous articles entering into the economy of manufacture which seem crude and simple, but which defy improvement.

No one, for instance, has ever been able to find a substitute for whalebone. With the diminution of the supply and the enormously increased cost of the article, scores of inventors have turned their attention to the article and attempted to supply a substitute, but up to the present time nothing as durable, tough and pliable as whalebone has resulted.

Another article without which no woollen manufacturer could prepare certain goods for the market is the teazel. It is absolutely essential in raising fabrics, and although scores of imitation teazels have been invented none is found to give the satisfaction of the old little burr, with its stiff little hooks, which is so extensively exported and cultivated for the cloth finishing trade.

Persons who have never seen a teazel can imagine a fur cone, set all over with little barbs. It is really a burr, or flower head, or thistle top of the plant daisy, and so identified is it with cloth dressing, and so long and so general has been the use of the teazel for the purpose mentioned, that it is even reflected in its botanical name, Dipsacus fullonum, or "fuller's teazel."

However familiar the teazel may be to persons familiar with woollen manufacture, or to those who live in countries where it is extensively cultivated, the fact remains that the great majority of persons have never heard of such an article and will be astonished to learn in what enormous quantities they are raised.

In France alone 6,000 acres of land are exclusively devoted to the cultivation of the teazel. French manufacturers use annually nearly $2,000,000 worth of the prickly heads and export during the same period upward of 60,000 tons, valued at $2,500,000. When it is considered that a teazel weighs not more than an ordinary burdock, the vast quantity exported can be realized in part.

In addition to the French crop, which is the most highly esteemed, teazels are produced in enormous quantities in Austria, England, Belgium, Poland and the Crimea. Until recently they did not grow satisfactorily in the United States, but now they are quite extensively grown in Oneida county, in this state, and possibly elsewhere, and it is said return a fair profit to the cultivator for the outlay of money.

The prickles of the teazel have a small knob at the end, and this is mounted on an elastic stem, and set with great precision on the central spindle, which, revolving, claws the surface of the cloth, raises a nap which mechanical contrivances have always failed in equaling.—New York Herald.

Eccentricity In Literary Taste.

Curious whims are occasionally shown by readers at the Public Library. There was a woman who regularly every Friday came for a volume of sermons. She did not mind whose sermons, nor what the subject, so long as they were religious discourses of some sort. Monday she would come back, return the sermons and take out a novel to unbind her mind until the next Friday, when the sermons would again be in demand.

There was another woman who would never read anything but a religious novel, as she called it, not such a one as "Ben-Hur" or one with a particular religious tenet to inculcate, but a book with a clergyman as its chief character. Swinburne's "Heavenly Arcana" was read daily for years by an eccentric old gentleman. He would draw the book, keep it two weeks, return it with his place marked and call early the next morning to take it out again. He never took any other book from the library, and finally died, leaving his place marked as usual. There is one old man who will never read a book written by a woman. He reads good books continually, but will have nothing to do with a volume bearing a woman's name as its author.—Boston Herald.

One of the Paine Anecdotes.

A volume could be made of the good stories in which the venerable Henry W. Paine, who ended his long life here, is the central figure. Mr. Paine undoubtedly knew more law than many of our judges. He himself had declined a seat on the supreme bench of his native state of Maine and again when Governor Bullock tendered him the succession to Chief Justice Bigelow in Massachusetts. But he was not arrogant of his learning, and it is only as illustrating his perennial humor that the story is told of him, how, when seen reading a lawbook on a street car, a friend said, "What! Mr. Paine, you reading law?" "Bless your soul, no!" was the reply; "this is not law; it is a volume of supreme court decisions."—Boston Commonwealth.

The Advantage of Light Heads.

"I come of a very old family," boasted Batkins as the party sat around the fire at the club lying about their ancestors.

"I suppose they were in the ark with Noah," sneered Smith, who affects to despise those who claim a long line of ancestors.

"They didn't have to get into the ark," interrupted Simpson, who dislikes Batkins; "the family is so light headed they floated like corks."

Then Smith touched the button, and by his presence of mind prevented a riot.—Philadelphia Call.

Photographs Report Better Than Eyes.

At a meeting of the Academie des Sciences, Paris, M. Zenger exhibited two photographs which he had taken at midnight from his window, looking on the lake of Geneva and Mont Blanc. The lake and the mountain are feebly imaged on the plates, although they were both quite invisible to the eye in the darkness. It is well known that many stars, invisible to the eye, are revealed on the photographic plate, and some years ago an advertisement on the bull of the Great Eastern, at Birkenhead, which had been tarred over so as to be invisible, was quite legible in a photograph which had been taken of the vessel.—London Globe.

people by the high water mark of achievement in results and in individuals, and not always to be looking at the faults and failures. So I say again the American girl is charming, but I wish she would cultivate a little more heart.—Mrs. Ormiston Chant.
